Our First Conference

Thank you all for attending and presenting later today!

There would be no conference without you...

COOLdays
Collabora Online

One year after the Move

Moved to GitHub on 1ˢᵗ October 2020

- LibreOffice essential part of the server side of Collabora Online

- Contributing back all the changes to the LibreOffice core

- Building own community with own needs since then

Tools & people

- GitHub – for the code & review process

- Weblate – for the translations

Contributions since 1ˢᵗ October 2020

Many new contributors since the Move

- 3626 commits by 137 people (counts both code & translations)

- 109 people out of that (who have made 687 commits) don't have @collabora email address

  - Huge thanks to the 71 non-Collabora translators

  - Huge thanks to the 38 non-Collabora code contributors

  - The complete list follows…

- And big thanks to all my colleagues too:

And some even present today

Particularly pleased to see some of you at the conference today:

- Gleb Popov: FreeBSD port

- Alexandru Vlăduțu: How COOL is used in 1&1

- Zdeněk Crhonek: Translating Collabora website

- Gabriel Masei: Stability & cleanup improvements in Online

- Andreas Kainz: Notebookbar Structure

Part of a larger ecosystem

Thank you, our partners!

Collabora Online cannot exist by itself

Need a file storage

- By design, the software does not organize/store the actual files

- We depend on the EFSS solutions and plug into them via integrations and WOPI-alike protocol

- If you want to integrate Collabora Online into your solution, attend the "SDK: creating a new integration" talk

- Or attend talks about the existing successful integrations (the next slide)

Partners & integration talks

Leart more about projects that use Collabora Online

- Pol Dellaiera: Symfony bundle intergrating WOPI and Collabora Online

- Julius Härtl: Nextcloud integration update

- Birgit Becker: EGroupware integration update

- Chetanya Kandhari: Mattermost integration update

- Michael Wuttke: Moodle integration update

- Willy Kloucek: Collabora Online and WOPI in ownCloud Infinite Scale

Practical bits

Thank you Arawa & Scaleway!

Sponsors of the Big Blue Button video conferencing for this conference

- Created the server setup & provide bandwidth for that

Talks organization

Each talk is supposed to be 10 minutes long

- Grouped into blocks of 6-7 talks

- Questions & Answers at the end of each block

- Break afterwards

Some of the talks are pre-recorded

- But most of them are live

It is our first conference – please bear with us if it's not perfect…

Awesome to have you all here

Thank you, and hope you'll like the conference!
